State of the World's Fathers 2023

First International Day of Care and Support

We are all enmeshed in multiple care responsibilities

Everyone cares about care; they do care and benefit from it

70% to 90% of men across 17 countries agreed that "I feel as responsible for care work as my partner." Yet across 17 countries, mothers are still doing more care than fathers ... but the gap is narrowing

1.36 TIMES house cleaning 1.32 TIMES physical childcare 1.26 TIMES emotional childcare 1.17 TIMES cooking 1.16 TIMES care for their partner TIMES household logistics 1.08 TIMES physical care for elders 1.08 TIMES emotional care for elders 1.07 TIMES care for persons with disabilities

Parents reported widespread increases in care work during COVID lockdown periods.

Mothers and fathers reporting increases in care tasks during COVID lockdowns

Caregiving brings us happiness...

Men and women who said they were satisfied with how involved they were in raising their children were 1.5 times as likely to agree that "I am the person I always wanted to be" - and to feel a sense of gratitude.

A key way forward: Men's emotional self care is connected to care for others When men are engaged in emotional self-care for themselves, they are also this

When men are engaged in emotional self-care for themselves, they are also this many times more likely to engage in these other forms of care:

Those who report spending time on emotional self care are:

e likely to report	Caring for family member with disability
e likely to report	Caring for older family members' emotional needs
e likely to report	Caring for child's physical needs
re likely to report	Cleaning the house
e likely to report	Caring for child's emotional needs
e likely to report	Caring for older family members' physical needs
e likely to report	Caring for partner

Change must be structural as well as individual

Numerous barriers - especially in cost and poor public offerings - in the support parents receive for care work.

Reasons why some parents say they don't have all the care support they need, by fathers and mothers

Fathers Mothers	% of parents who said they didn't have all each reason (reduced list for pre
	0% 10%
	16%
The hours of fully paid/guaranteed care I get are not enough	16%
	24%
provided/subsidized care services
There aren't any or enough publicly provided/subsidized care services	27%
	27%
Getting paid care is too expensive	28%

Paid paternity leave is becoming more available, most often under three weeks.

Availability of nationally guaranteed, paid paternity leave for fathers according to latest data aggregation from WORLD Policy Analysis Center

No paid leave for fathers Less than 3 weeks paid leave for fathers 3 to 13.9 weeks paid leave for fathers 14 to 25.9 weeks paid leave for fathers

26 weeks or more paid leave for fathers

What is important to voters? Income stability, health care, childcare rank highest for women and men

FIGURE 17 - Top policy priorities, for men and women

Note: in the US nearly ¾ of fathers support key care policies (at nearly the same rates as women) – across the political divide

Respondents were asked, "Thinking of all the problems that political leaders in your context are working to address, which is the most important to you?," followed by a list of 14 options. Each respondent chose up to five as their own priorities.

Engaging Men in Advocacy for Care Policies

More than half of both mothers and fathers said that political activism for care leave policies was important to them.

This ranged from 57% for fathers and 66% for mothers in India, to 92% for fathers and 94% of mothers in Rwanda.

Centering care in economic policies

- Care economy is 11.5% of global workforce
- Care represents up a quarter of GDP in some countries
- Investing in care is not instead of investing in the productive economy; it is the productive economy
- Care policies consistently demonstrate positive returns on investment

Why aren't we investing? The barrier is not technical; it's political.

Our recommendations for a CARING world

- Center care systems in policies and public institutions, focusing on the most marginalized
- Advocate for a culture of care in all workplaces
- Revolutionize the way boys are taught about care
- Invest in care, measure it, and disaggregate by gender, social class, and age
- Normalize equal parental leave for mothers, fathers, and all caregivers, and for care of all kinds
- Generate and disseminate mainstream media that portrays men and boys as caring and competent caregivers

