

Questions for Reflection

1. What are your initial reactions?
2. What could the heart represent?
3. Why are the other men laughing? Is it possible the laughing men have also buried their hearts?
4. How might wearing a suit relate to ideas of success? How might that be connected to burying his heart?

Questions for Reflection

1. What are your initial reactions?
2. What might this wheel represent? Why would someone keep running on it?
3. Are the men in the wheel competing or supporting each other?
4. What are the people around them doing?

Questions for Reflection

1. What are your initial reactions?
2. What are some reasons why he might be using the pump?
3. What might the pump represent, that people actually use in real life?
4. What are the costs of chasing an "unrealistic" body standard?

YOUR HONOR,
PLEASE LET MY SON GO.
YOU KNOW WHAT THEY SAY...
BOYS WILL BE BOYS,
RIGHT?

Questions for Reflection

1. What are your initial reactions?
2. Why do people say "boys will be boys"?
3. How does the mom contribute to the expectations we have for how boys (and men) will act?
4. What might fairness look like when it comes to holding people accountable?

G H A M I R

equimundo

Questions for Reflection

1. What are your initial reactions?
2. How do social media, gaming, and our online lives help us connect, while also cause stress?
3. How do we know if we've been "burnt out" by our online lives?
4. What's a strategy you practice to avoid getting "cooked"?

Questions for Reflection

1. What are your initial reactions?
2. What might each of the two masks represent?
3. Do you use masks? How and when do you choose which to use?
4. What are ways boys and men can ask for help to use transparent or vulnerable masks?

Questions for Reflection

1. What are your initial reactions?
2. What does this phone dumpster represent?
3. Do you ever find yourself like him, adding to it?
4. Are there different consequences to adding hate online, compared to real life?

GHAMIR

equimundo

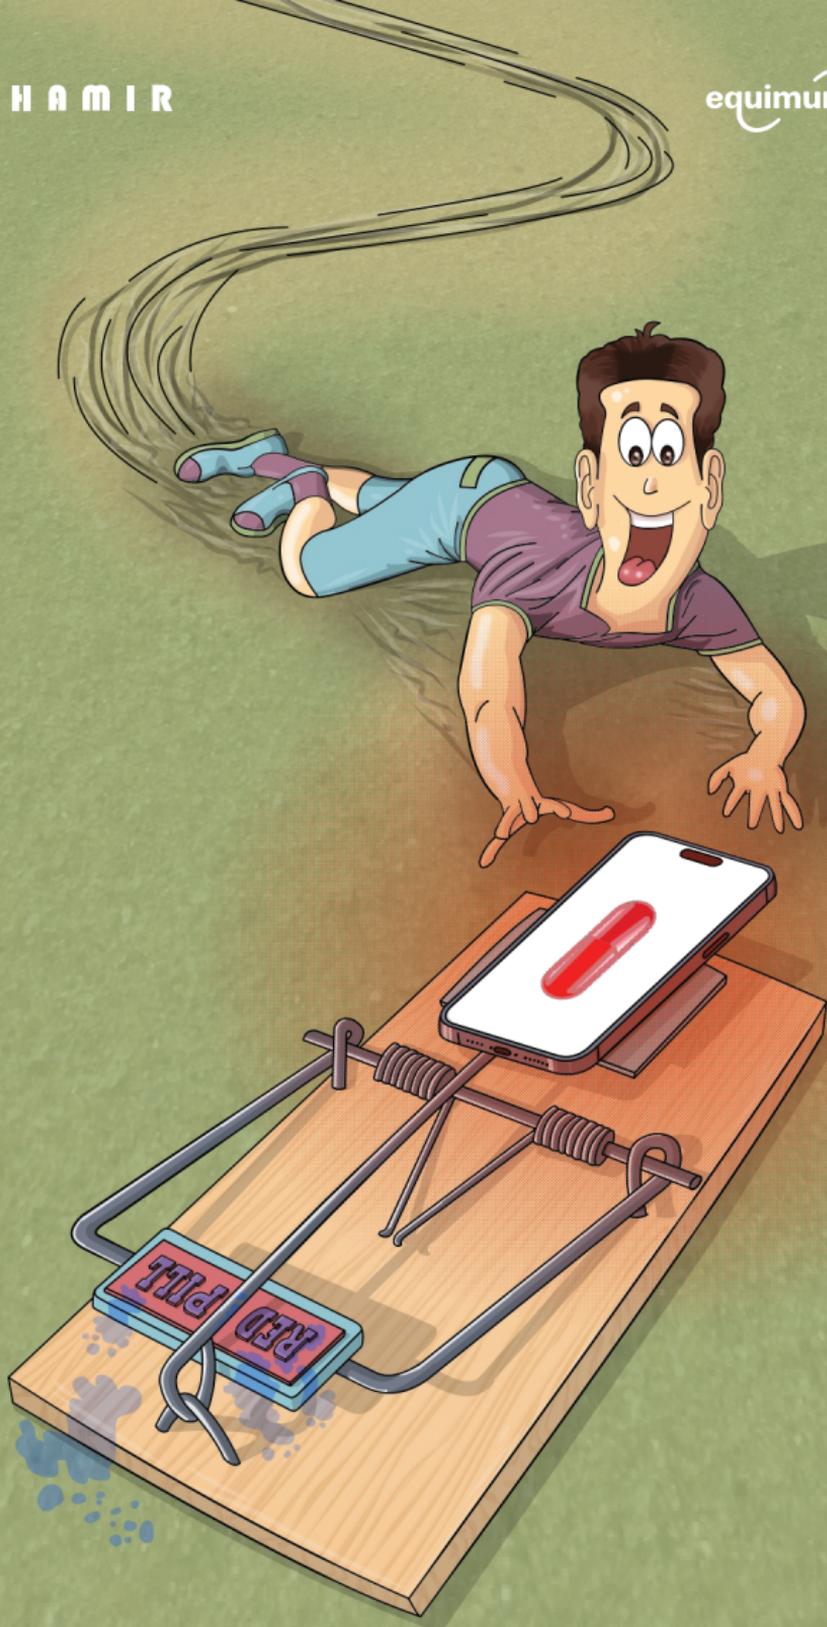

Questions for Reflection

1. What are your initial reactions?
2. What does this ball represent?
3. Do women push the ball the same way men do?
4. When might this hill end?

Questions for Reflection

1. What are your initial reactions?
2. What is being pursued, and how is this affecting their wellbeing?
3. What “impossible goals” might exist in real life?
4. How are these men competing or supporting each other? How does that play out in real life?

Questions for Reflection

1. What are your initial reactions?
2. What are some messages of the “red pill”?
3. Why are some of us drawn to these traps online? Do they offer false promises?
4. Why do we go online to explore these topics? Are there ways to discuss them in real life?